What engines were used in the R62? Just the turbocharged V8 Deutz and Cummins inline 6? Someone told me the very first ones built had the same non-turbo Deutz as the R60. When did Gleaner quit using the air cooled engines in their combines 1995? Thanks, Hugo

This isn't exactly what you would call looking at the engine, but I would run the engine for 10 hours or so, change oil, run it for 20 or 30 hours and pull an oil analysis sample. Best $20 you'll ever spend.

It is my understanding that the except for engine, the R62 and R72 are the same combine. What else is different? Anything? Maybe final drives? How can you tell? So I was wondering, is the turbo Deutz in the early R62 the same engine that is in the early R72? If so, any differences other than a turn of the screw?
